

P.S., SHE LOVES YOU

by Jack Heeger

Last summer I wrote about Cheryl Dupris, the Army reservist who, following her third tour of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan, came to California on a mission — to taste as much petite sirah as she could. It's her favorite wine and she wanted to visit the source.

She loves it so much she returned last week to attend "Dark and Delicious," an event hosted by PS I Love You, the petite sirah promotional organization, at San Francisco's Palace of Fine Art.

She was easily recognized — she was the one with the widest smile in the building.

(And perhaps with the purplest teeth.)
